Caren Rideau does it all in her own inimitable style. When she's not designing bright, functional kitchens for clients or taste-testing in-line at the vineyard and she runs with her partner, Andrés Ibarra, Rideau is busy traveling, cooking family recipes, and hosting farm gatherings in her California home. Inspired by her upbringing, Rideau's work brings together the vibrant hues and styles of her native South East with a love for celebration fostered by her Mexican and Louisiana Creole roots. In Caren Rideau: Kitchen Designer, Vintner, Entertaining at Home, the designer shares the process and inspiration behind her creative interiors, from colorful kitchens to storage smart dining areas and beyond. She also offers some of her go-to recipes and in-line pairings for easy entertaining (think: summer peach with Albariño; butternut squash soup with Grenache; or steak tacos with Syrah).

The first book on and by this multitalented designer, Caren Rideau: Kitchen Designer, Vintner, Entertaining at Home is a must-have for anyone looking to reimagine their home and welcome friends and family in style.

Caren Rideau is the founder of the Kitchen Design Group in Los Angeles and a vintner at Tierra Y Vino, which she runs with her in-law partner in the Santa Ynez Valley. Her work is inspired by the bright colors and flavors of her Chicana culture and Southern upbringing. She studied interior architecture in college, and upon graduating, simply said, "I want to design kitchens," and has been doing so ever since.
